Mass Spectrometry of Ribosomal RNA fragments for Microbial Identification.

Thursday, May 21st, 2009

5:00 – 6:00 p.m.

(Pizza will be served)

Join us for an informal discussion hosted by Dr. Richard Willson, an invited speaker from the Department of Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering at the University of Houston.

We will be discussing another novel use for mass spectrometry, the ability to identify microbes as a result of nucleotide mass prediction.
