

THE BEHAVIORAL & COMMUNITY SCIENCE CORE OF THE UAB CENTER FOR AIDS RESEARCH (CFAR)

LUNCH PROVIDED

PARKING AVAILABLE

Parking deck behind Ryals Public Health Building (entrance on 16th St. near University Blvd).
*Edge of Chaos across University at Lister Hill
Bring your parking voucher for validation.

The CFAR Behavioral & Community Science Core supports research and academic-community partnership aimed at understanding HIV/AIDS risk and protective factors in the Deep South.

<http://www.uab.edu/medicine/cfar/core-facilities/behavioral-community-sciences-core>

CORDIALLY INVITES YOU TO

A panel: Innovative mobile applications (mHealth) for HIV/STI programs and research

MODERATED BY:

Janet Turan, PhD, MPH
Associate Professor, Department of Health Care Organization and Policy;
Co-director for Behavioral and Community Science Core, Center for AIDS Research (CFAR)

Panelists:

Ann Gakumo, PhD, RN

Assistant Professor, School of Nursing, Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Nurse Faculty Scholar
Older African Americans' Perspectives on mHealth Approaches for HIV Management

Bulent Turan, PhD

Assistant Professor, Department of Psychology
Examining the role of social stigma in HIV with experience sampling method: A mobile phone application

Robin Lanzi, PhD, MPH

Associate Professor, Department of Health Behavior
Sexually Active Adolescent Focused Education (SAAFE): A Mobile Based Game to Promote Healthy Sexual Practices

Steve Dellinger

Community Health Educator, AL Dept. of Public Health
Using mobile technology to implement ARTAS (Anti Retro-Viral Treatment and Access to Services)

Monday, February 9, 2015

11:30 am – 1:00 pm

The Edge of Chaos

