

STEPS FORWARD

More than 100,000 Americans will be diagnosed with colorectal cancer this year, according to the National Cancer Institute. More than 400,000 will learn they have pancreatic cancer. More than 20,000 will be told they suffer from liver cancer.

But one person—you could help them all. With a contribution to the UAB Comprehensive Cancer Center's gastrointestinal (GI) oncology program, you can help research take crucial steps forward to become breakthrough treatments. You can help renowned cancer specialists step up their efforts to find new ways to prevent and fight the disease. And most important, you can help provide patients with the care they need to take step after step toward survival.
