

Tuesday Tip

Learn a new skill or polish old ones with Lynda.com

Employees will have free access to Lynda.com, an online learning site where users can learn or improve skills, beginning Sept. 15.

The site provides a video library of courses that cover a wide range of material — from web development, photography and coding to resume writing and setting up a home office. Access is open to benefit-eligible employees of UAB, UAB Health System, UAHSF, Viva and Callahan Eye Hospital. Just login www.uab.edu/lynda using a Blazer ID and password.

Each course is a series of short videos, so users can learn at their own pace and on their own time. All videos are viewable on computers or via Lynda.com's mobile app for iPhone, iPad or Android.

Lynda also offers a feature called Learning Paths, in which courses are curated by specific job titles to offer a starting point for different jobs and professions.

Certificates are awarded for completed Lynda.com classes, which will be housed in UAB's Learning Locker along with other Learning & Development-hosted class certificates. The certificate also will appear on a user's LinkedIn page if the accounts are connected.
