UAB will take the field as a Division I Football Bowl Sub-dvision program this year for the first time since 2014, and the new Football Operations building is set to be completed just in time for the upcoming season.

When construction of the building, which will include a covered-turf practice field known as Legacy Pavilion, began on Sep. 15, 2016, M.J. Harris Construction set July 1 of this year as the projected completion date. According to Ted Feeley, associate athletics director for communications, the project is right on schedule to meet that goal.

After demolition of the existing practice field was completed, M.J. Harris received approval to proceed with construction at the site on Sept. 12. By Sept. 19, the first bulldozer hit dirt.

As of early January, the building itself has made visible progress, with "daily activity" at its future home on the corner of 6th Avenue and 11th Street South.

"The foundation for the..."
Anthony Roney
Campus Reporter

Back INTO business, wait nearly over

Update: Early February should reveal the second-floor renovations

The second floor of the Mervyn H. Sterne Library is still under construction and will continue for the next two months.

Even though renovation is wrapping up, the library won’t be fully-functioning until early February, according to Daniel Guarnieri, a library staff assistant for the month despite its January deadline.

Guarnieri added that faculty will hold the new INTO UAB Cen-trum throughout the month for construction workers to leave the Circulation Desk. Once construction is complete, the new INTO UAB Centro is expected to be open.

Opposing protests occurring at the same time, place support both sides of abortion debate

Wallace Golding
Community Reporter

The roads lining Brother Bryan Park served as a symbol of the nation’s divide as protesters lined both sides of tenth avenue south to stand either for or against abortion.

On one side, the members of the annual Birmingham March for Life held signs reading phrases like “women need love, not abortion.” On the other, the supporters of the new administration were preparing for Reproductive Rightsparade with signs reading “I stand with Planned Parenthood.”

Less than one week before the inauguration of President-elect Trump, the new administration was on the minds of many pro-choice observers.

“They are a new era,” Karen Arnold, a Birmingham resident, said. “It’s only a matter of time until [women’s] rights are stripped from us. We are losing our democracy.”

Birmingham native Teri Bossard tried to remain optimistic of how the incoming President will handle these issues. “There is still much to be known, but I’m disappointed,” she said. “He wants to walk in the same shoes as me. We need to start getting different values that I walk in.”

For many pro-choice women, the New Year was the first steps to repeal the Affordable Care Act, as the Affordable Care Act is commonly known as Obamacare, many pro-choice women at the rally felt as if their rights will eventually be discarded. The availability of abortions is what is important to Arnold and is what ultimately led her to come to the demonstration. “You do not stop abortions when you outlaw them,” Arnold said. “They will occur regardless. You only hurt women by banning them. You only kill women.”

When asked about the potential effect of the Affordable Care Act, Jezurez replied with a passionate tone of voice. “I think it’s potentially devastating. It’s said, ‘It’s a huge step back all across in steps, but especially for women’s health and women’s rights.’

On the south side of tenth avenue south, however, the story was vastly different. For these women and men, an unborn life is just as important as their own. “I’m here for those who have no voice,” Jessica Johnson said. “Abortion hurts an entire family, not just the mother or the child.”

Pro-life supporters like Tina Bossard think the incoming presidential administration will be good at supporting their values. “We want to walk in the same values that I walk in.”

Furthermore, Robinson says that she attended the rally for not only the Pro-life supporters like Tina Bossard think the incoming presidential administration will be good at supporting their values. “We want to walk in the same values that I walk in.”

Furthermore, Robinson says that she attended the rally for not only the unborn, but also for post-abortion women. “There are so many negative consequences,” Robinson said.

Ken Gables believes that the issue does not lie in the hands of a single presidential administration. Rather, it will take the entire government to make it right.

“The government should not be in the business of subsidizing abortions,” Gables said. Regardless of their viewpoints on abortion, pro-life supporters Bossard and Gables were able to reach common ground on one thing. For both, the Affordable Care Act could use at least some reform.

“We understand there are flaws with the ACA,” Gables said. “We need to strengthen the existing legislation rather than leave women without a choice.”

“This is one of the most pivotal elements of our social structure,” Gables said. “We need to champion this. The ACA is not the right way.”

According to the United for Life Foundation, 5,899 abortions were performed in Alabama last year, with nearly half of them being performed at the Tuscaloosa-based Whole Ala- bama Women’s Centre. In Alabama, nearly 60 percent of all abortions occur in 18 to 29 year-old women.

Wallace Golding can be reached at wsgoldin@uab.edu and on Twitter @Wgolding.

TWIN DEMONSTRATIONS
One road, one war, different battles of 36 schools pass state standards

Ordinance to fund $1M reading comprehension initiative passed at meeting

Surabhi Rao
Community Editor

Lashunda Scales, councilor of District 1, spoke at Tuesday’s weekly council meeting on the allocation of $1 million to the Birmingham Public Library, the educational foundation of the need of a new initiative.

According to the United for Life Foundation, 5,899 abortions were performed in Alabama last year, with nearly half of them being performed at the Tuscaloosa-based Whole Ala- bama Women’s Centre. In Alabama, nearly 60 percent of all abortions occur in 18 to 29 year-old women.

Wallace Golding can be reached at wsgoldin@uab.edu and on Twitter @Wgolding.
Young democrats, grassroots politics

UAB student works campaigns on his terms, and on campus in his climb to political office

Surabhi Rao
Community Editor

Birmingham is known as a red state, but this is all apart from my ideological dis-agreements from them.

As such, Carter has become extremely involved in local democratic groups and initiatives during his collegiate career. Carter is double majoring in political science and history. He hopes to graduate with a master’s in public administration at UAB, while at the same time working on local democratic groups and progressive organizations.

Carter is the LGBT Campus Coordinator at the Birmingham College Democrats. He is also president of the UAB College Democrats and worked for Hillary Clinton’s campaign as a field organizer.

When you are a field organizer you hear a lot of stories when you knock on doors. I was hired in mid-August, went to Akron, Ohio and I was given a turf, a part of a county,” Carter said. "I immediately began reaching out and building a team to turn out as many voters as possible. I was this little face of the campaign."

Apart from his hero Hillary Clinton, Carter takes his inspiration from local activists who take it upon themselves to be mediums of change in the community. Carter had a canvas captain named Iris, who was 79 years old. She has worked on every presidential campaign for the Democratic Party since 1972.

"I knocked doors for me four times a week and opened her doors for volunteers to relax in her home,” Carter said. "The first time, she said she looked at her children and realized she had the responsibility to leave them in a better world, and that is how it all started. Even now that the election is over she will be attending local women’s marches.”

Carter grew up in rural North Carolina and believes that rural areas, such as coal counties, can be revitalized to play into the green initiative and decrease the neglect of such areas on many levels.

Surabhi Rao can be reached at surrao@uab.edu and on twitter @CrysalIT7.

People of Birmingham

Stephens hopes to translate the changes he is trying to make on a local level to a national level and go into public policy as a formal position in a political office.

"I am interested in UAB and why it is so difficult for everybody, regardless of your race. Everybody might help. People have trouble finding purpose and identity because they don't have something to identify with. That's what I live to do on the top floor of Highwalds with a view of the Vatican and an empty apartment. Now I have a purposeful life of minimalism because I use my money to help whoever I can. I feel really good about what I am in life because I can help anybody. You can't possibly imagine that gratification if you aren't using your money to help," Stephens said.
Blazers topple WKU

In revenge rematch, UAB dominates in the paint, cruising to big victory

Jack Ryan
Sports Editor

In their first meeting since Western Kentucky University's Big Dusty knocked UAB's Conference USA Championship hopes in 2016, UAB scored 44 points in the paint to defeat WKU Thursday on the road. Jan. 12.

Junior forward, William Lee, led all scorers in the game with 19 points followed by Tosin Mehinti who scored 17 points.

I was very pleased with the way we fought against a very good opponent," Rob Ehsan, UAB men's basketball head coach, said. "I thought the first half, defensively, we were as good as we had been all season. It was 20-20 at halftime with solid defense against a very solid opponent." UAB led the Hilltoppers at halftime 30-20. WKU's two best players scored just 19 points and the lowest amount of points the Hilltoppers had surrendered in any game.

In the first half, UAB shot 57.1 percent (12-21) from the field, while holding WKU to just 29.6 percent (8-27) shooting from the field. One of UAB's shots distilled Barrow Arena as UAB ran the Nick Norton's signature backdoor alley-oop. The 44 points scored in the paint were the most by UAB this season. Even though UAB was outscored by WKU, they got the ball inside and scored around the rim.

"We had a couple of big individual performances and some bugs that got away," Tosin Mehinti, top right, slam dunks the basketball Thursday night against Western Kentucky University. William Lee, center, and WKU players look on. BELOW: Mehinti retains a career shooting percentage of 51.5.

"[In ten years] Oh man, I'll be old, 32. Maybe close to retirement. If you play ten years of basketball that is solid. After that, just trying to look for that next step for me. Right now, I am busy with my business management. I want to be an entrepreneur that is going to be something huge for me," said Mehinti.

Mehinti also enjoys listening to music, playing video games and eating macaroni and cheese.

Tosin Mehinti plays a senior forward for the UAB Men's Basketball team. Mehinti was born in Lagos, Nigeria. He played high school basketball at Goodpasture Christian Academy, a private preparatory school located in Cool Springs, Ga.

247Sports.com listed him as a two-star recruit coming out of high school, but he was highly recruited and ranked the twentieth forward in the state of Georgia. Out of his seven offers, he choose UAB.

"Pretty much the whole environment and the coaching staff," Mehinti said. "They make it feel like a family and take care of us on and off the court.

In his fourth year of playing for UAB, he was recruited by UAB Head Basketball Coach, Rob Ehsan, who at the time of Mehinti's recruitment, was in his first year as Associate Head Coach to Jerrod Haase.

In his career at UAB, Mehinti averages 5.4 points per game. He grants an average of 4.3 rebounds per game. Mehinti swats away 1.3 blocks per game. In the history of UAB, Mehinti ranks as No. 3 in blocked shots.

Mehinti had one of the best games of his career on Tuesday against WKU. He scored the first seven points of the game and wound up tallying 17 points and seven rebounds. He also blocked two shots and stole a pass. "[Tosin has been] coming along, and I think starting has helped him a little bit, he was due [for a big game]," said Ehsan. "I recruited Tosin, I've known him for four years, and sometimes you have to keep him patient and keep him coming.

One other high point in Mehinti's career came two years ago. UAB was 4-9 by the time conference play started in January. However, UAB would end up making a run in the tournament and eventually won the Conference USA tournament. With the win, they received an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament, which Big XII foe, Iowa State, accepted them.

After going down early, the Blazers fought back, and the second half was back and forth between the teams. UAB was down two with just 5.3 seconds to play in the game. UAB ran a double screen play, involving Mehinti and junior forward, William Lee, setting a screen for Robert Brown. Brown drained the shot, and UAB would win the game.

"[My favorite memory was] my sophomore year when we wanted to the NCAA tournament," Mehinti said. "That whole experience when we beat Iowa State and played UCLA. Just the feeling of getting [Robert Brown] that shot. Coach drew that play that up. The Iowa State player was actually on the wrong side of the screen and he would have just taken a step around it, wouldn't have worked, but he went inside instead, and I knew we had him." Off of the court, Mehinti studies as a senior in business management. Mehinti said his favorite course of his career while at UAB was math because he enjoys numbers.

"[Mehinti is going to be something huge for me," said Ehsan. Ehsan and Mehinti are working on their Grilled cheese.

Mehinti also enjoys listening to music, playing video games and eating macaroni and cheese.

Jack Ryan can be reached at sports@insideuab.com and on Twitter @kscope_sports.
Blazers scorch Thundering Herd

Five players score in double figures to blow past Marshall

Trinity Dix
Sports Reporter

UAB men’s basketball faced Marshall Thundering Herd and senior guard Austin Loop, one of the team’s top scorers, was early afternoon matchup on the Thundering Herd until the end of the second half. Overall, the Blazers shot nine 3-pointers successfully, according to the game. The UAB Blazers will travel to Boca Raton, Fla., where they will face the Florida Atlantic University Owls on Thursday, Jan. 19. The game will tip-off at 7 p.m. central time and will be broadcast live on beIN Sports.

HaHa” Lee said. “We started cheering for each other and we just got it going. We got a couple of fast break points and hit a couple of threes as a team.”

By the second half, the Blazers were able to throw off the Thundering Herd’s offensive rhythm, using defensive pressure to force Marshall to slow down their usual fast pace and play half-court basketball. In the paint, UAB scored a number of points using athleticism and length, despite last-quarter scores.

“We try to be really physical on the ball,” UAB head coach Robert Ehsan said. “(Hakeem) and Denzel are more physical guys. Deion came in and really bothered them with ball pressure. I thought that helped a lot.”

With athleticism and physicality, the Blazers kept hold on the Thundering Herd through the second half. Overall, the Blazers shot nine 3-pointers successfully, according to the game. The UAB Blazers will travel to Boca Raton, Fla., where they will face the Florida Atlantic University Owls on Thursday, Jan. 19. The game will tip-off at 7 p.m. central time and will be broadcast live on beIN Sports.

As the season looms, 700 seats will be added to accommodate crowds

Trinity Dix
Sports Reporter

This year, UAB’s Softball team kicks off their season No. 16 in the nation for 3-pointers, according to the NCAA, when the two teams met in the 24th annual early afternoon matchup on the Thundering Herd until the end of the second half. Overall, the Blazers shot nine 3-pointers successfully, according to the game. The UAB Blazers will travel to Boca Raton, Fla., where they will face the Florida Atlantic University Owls on Thursday, Jan. 19. The game will tip-off at 7 p.m. central time and will be broadcast live on beIN Sports.

“The second half, the Blazers were able to throw off the Thundering Herd’s offensive rhythm, using defensive pressure to force Marshall to slow down their usual fast pace and play half-court basketball. In the paint, UAB scored a number of points using athleticism and length, despite last-quarter scores.

“We try to be really physical on the ball,” UAB head coach Robert Ehsan said. “(Hakeem) and Denzel are more physical guys. Deion came in and really bothered them with ball pressure. I thought that helped a lot.”

With athleticism and physicality, the Blazers kept hold on the Thundering Herd through the second half. Overall, the Blazers shot nine 3-pointers successfully, according to the game. The UAB Blazers will travel to Boca Raton, Fla., where they will face the Florida Atlantic University Owls on Thursday, Jan. 19. The game will tip-off at 7 p.m. central time and will be broadcast live on beIN Sports.
Obama's legacy, a climax of U.S. history

Connor McDonald

As Obama passes the torch of the presidency to his successor, it’s important that we look back on the man who led us as a nation for the last eight years and his accomplishments. Obama’s primary accomplishment was his re-election in the passing of the Affordable Care Act (ACA), also known previously as “Obamacare.” While still highly controversial, the legislation has proven itself to be more powerful than anticipated. Another equally important accomplishment was his class and the president that he set for ethics in 21st century American politics. He managed to remain completely scandal free during his eight years in office and is often praised for his ability to speak to and with others. Obama remained transparent with his life—openly discussing his convictions and passions, including his mixed African American/White background. At the absence of his father in his life, the Obama administration was designed to keep the President’s political goals achievable. He successfully wove the narrative of his love for America in a constructive way and with tact, even through the rough political times. In fact, Obama had less scandals than Trump has had in the past two years alone.

Another one of Obama’s greatest hits was the successful normalizing of relations with Iran and Russia. Obama’s decisions are often praised for his ability to work with foreign leaders with little repercussions. Obama will also be remembered for opening trade relations between Cuba and the United States for the first time in decades. While criticized largely by many, especially Cuban Americans, open trade between the two nations is projected to positively impact both nations economically.

From my perspective, Obama was often criticized for his disconnection from the Democratic Party. When it came to his supporters also supporting the democratic cause as a whole. This is something that Obama himself has admitted frustrate him during his tenure as president. As he could never figure out how to channel the energy of his supporters into a party as a whole. Obama was also repeatedly criticized for being perceived as an alien compared to Trump. Perhaps we should take the advice of President Obama when he spoke about personal qualities on social media, but talking to them. Obama is destined to be your likeminded colleagues, but he is also to be your decent opponents of others and consider them. I may think and believe differently than you but that doesn’t make me evil. It just means that I disagree with you. I may not like him, and you may not like him, but you have to respect him as the President of the United States, and if you live in this country and enjoy its protection, he will be your president. Chris St. John thepresidency@uab.edu

The Kaleidoscope functions as a member of UAB Daily Chaos and the Student Media Board. We are an association with UABTV, MoP, and the Alabama Congressional Delegation. We are the student-run newspaper of UAB student media.

The Kaleidoscope is produced by students of the UAB Student Media.

Chris St. John
Head Opinions Columnist
head@uab.edu

President 416
assistant@uab.edu

Spring 2017

Connor St. John
Head Opinions Columnist
head@uab.edu

Elena Roman
Managing Editor
roman@uab.edu

Inauguration

The Presidency is not a popularity contest

During the summer term my Trump bumper sticker was torn off my car while I was in class on a Tuesday night. No matter how much I did not believe in the ideas of Bernie or Hillary, I never once thought to tear off someone's bumper sticker. I guess the person thought by doing this copyrighted act in the parking lot, that I would come off my class, my sticker ripped off, and change my mind.

I don't mind others not agreeing with me, that is part of our democracy here in the United States. But I like what Lindsey Graham said during the confirmation hearings: “Freedom of speech is a great thing, and it is the freedom to listen.”

I don't mind others not agreeing with me, that is part of our democracy here in the United States. But I like what Lindsey Graham said during the confirmation hearings: “Freedom of speech is a great thing, and it is the freedom to listen.”

I don't mind others not agreeing with me, that is part of our democracy here in the United States. But I like what Lindsey Graham said during the confirmation hearings: “Freedom of speech is a great thing, and it is the freedom to listen.”

I don't mind others not agreeing with me, that is part of our democracy here in the United States. But I like what Lindsey Graham said during the confirmation hearings: “Freedom of speech is a great thing, and it is the freedom to listen.”

I don't mind others not agreeing with me, that is part of our democracy here in the United States. But I like what Lindsey Graham said during the confirmation hearings: “Freedom of speech is a great thing, and it is the freedom to listen.”

I don't mind others not agreeing with me, that is part of our democracy here in the United States. But I like what Lindsey Graham said during the confirmation hearings: “Freedom of speech is a great thing, and it is the freedom to listen.”
Spaces filling fast for Fall 2017!

SECURE YOUR SPACE TODAY

Rates as low as $479

PRIVATE BEDROOMS & BATHROOMS
FULLY FURNISHED APARTMENTS AVAILABLE
AMENITIES FOR A FIT & HEALTHY LIFESTYLE
ACADEMICALLY-ORIENTED ENVIRONMENT
INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY LEASES
ROOMMATE MATCHING AVAILABLE

APPLY ONLINE @ BIRMINGHAMSTUDENTHOUSING.COM

Rates/installments & amenities are subject to change. Rates/installments do not represent a monthly rental amount (and are not prorated), but rather the total base rent due for the lease term divided by the number of installments. Limited time only. See office for details.
Inauguration-night cocktail recipes from local mixologists

The Dire Wolf
- Captain Hinky Honeysuckle Vodka
- St. Germaine
- Fresh Lemon Juice
- St. Germaine

The Grektky
- Tanqueray Gin
- Earl Grey and Honey Simple Syrup
- Fresh Lemons Juice
- BrancaMenta

Lei Me Down
- Gin
- Champagne
- Strawberry Juice
- Lime
- Sea Salt

The Collins Bar
- Tanqueray Gin
- Pineapple Juice
- Vanila

Black Market Bar & Grill
- Black Market Gin
- Vodka
- Cathead Honeysuckle Fresh Lemon Juice
- St. Germaine
- Soda Water
- BrancaMenta

Shop owners leave their legacy in ink

Jason Grover Features Editor

AVONDALE

Locals branch out, combine love of tattoos and comics

Jason Grover Features Editor

A persistent buzz fills the air, almost drowning out the punk-rock soundtrack. Dozens of colorful comic books, bagged in clear plastic, fill the shelves that line the walls. Tattoo Tattoos and Comix is open for business.

Wess Gregg and Aaron Hamilton, both native sons of Birmingham, are laid-back artists who love the crowds. With a 10 percent to 20 percent discount for students, the shop offers a subscription service and will hold new comics for subscribers. Subscribers receive discounts ranging from 10 percent to 20 percent based on the number of titles subscribed to.

For both shop owners, comics and tattoos are lifelong hobbies that go hand-in-hand. Both got their first tattoos at age 18 and have acquired many in the years since. Many of those tattoos relate to beloved comics.

“My favorite tattoo I have was when I was 18,” Hamilton said. “I went to a Tank Girl tattoo. I eventually had to cover that one up.”

Gregg said his favorite is an image from “The Hex.” He said the piece looks a bit like the artist’s signature.

Tattoo work is priced according to size and complexity. Hamilton’s introduction to comic books seems almost like a superhero origin story.

“I found a bag of old comic books at a yard sale about four that I looked through and eventually read till the pages were falling apart,” he said. “And I haven’t stopped since then.”

For his part, Gregg said he’s been a fan of comics “since before I could read.”

When asked about current comic titles that he likes, Hamilton said, “a ton of great independent and creator-owned titles are being made right now.” He goes on to note a shift in mainstream comics to focus on female or non-white characters, like Black Panther or Ms. Marvel. That trend is made even more true by Black Panther, who was a major part of 2016’s commercially successful “Captain America: Civil War,” and whose own film is due out next year.

In light of both Gregg and Hamilton’s background in the Birmingham’s DIY punk scene, these trends seem right up their alley. “It’s a great time for comics,” Gregg said.

The shop has a laid-back atmosphere that invites customers to peruse the growing assortment of new and used comics or chat with staff and other customers.

“Good off a lot,” Gregg said. “We get asked about sharing various types of art with the community and then good off some more.”

“It works,” Hamilton added, “We work a little slow.”

New comics hit the stands every Wednesday. Single-issue comic books range from $3 to $4, while comic collections cost between $10 and $12. Sanctum offers a subscription service and will hold new comics for subscribers. Subscribers receive discounts ranging from 10 percent to 20 percent based on the number of titles subscribed to.

Jason Grover can be reached at features@insideuab.com.
Students hold community-centered contest

Sarah Faulkner

Art & Design

Art & Design, an interdisciplinary initiative developed in part by art majors Cima Khademi and Bailey Barrow, is calling creative community members to propose creative projects intended for social good by Jan. 20.

The winners, who will be announced Feb. 1, will be awarded $1000 of the seed funds that were initially awarded to Art & Design through the Alliance for the Arts in Research Universities in the Alliance for the Arts & Institute of Human Rights, a partnership that is designed to engage in the bigger picture of bringing the arts into the focus of community projects and interdisciplinary collaboration, said Khademi and Barrow in a jointly written statement to the Kaleidoscope.

“Not only is this chance to help the community and express creativity, but also this project will look great in a portfolio and/or several resources.

The contest is influenced by Khademi and Barrow’s experiences at the Emerging Creatives Summit. The Summit, which eventually led to the conception of the initiative as a whole, hosted panels and lectures focused on how the arts impact the community.

The professionals that were invited included all the artists that were engaged in creative practices and brought color and creative spirit to the inner city of Detroit during a Summit trip. Taken together, these experiences paved the way for the current contest.

“We feel that this project will allow students to see that they can have an impact on the community, as well as engage in the bigger picture of bringing the arts into the focus of community projects and interdisciplinary collaboration,” Khademi and Barrow said in a jointly written statement to the Kaleidoscope.

Students can submit proposals through the Kaleidoscope website. More information can be found on the website or by contacting Sarah Faulkner.

In addition to the attached field, the 46,000 sq. ft. building will be equipped with a locker room, training room, meeting rooms and offices. The program’s operations are currently housed in a building on University Boulevard and 13 Street South, which will be demolished at the end of the fall semester. The new football facility is a total game changer, UAB has never had facilities like this, but now UAB is going to be one of the top three most popular football programs.

“The new football facility is a total game changer,” Clayton said. “In a perfect world, I’ll never be in a parking lot again.”

Parking

Purple Routes, which alternate from the lots every 15 minutes during the week and every 20 minutes during the weekend, has relieved parking and Transportation Services that has planned to execute a new parking system where the price of a parking permit will vary throughout “zone parking.”

Depending on how close or far from the deck which dock or lot to park in, will determined which price the student will pay for a permit for the semester.

“In a perfect world, I’ll have this new system along with the other plans running by Fall 2017,” Clayton said. “But, according to Baxter, however, adequate amount of spots exist to accommodate all student parking needs.

Clayton confirmed, a sopho-
rine in biology, and said students who live in the dorms face issues with parking.

“If I don’t come back to campus by 6 p.m. on Sunday that I know uses the Blazer Express or any other times of the day, I’m not going to park in the student’s parking lot because I know there is not enough parking spots,” Clayton said.

“A lot of the time, students think that if they go to the top three most popular places, and they are full, they come to the conclusion that that there is not enough parking on campus,” said Davis. “But my perimeter lots are still empty.”

Davis said that students may not feel the most convor- mation parking, and parking has always been available as long as they are willing to walk or use the transit system.

Some students still feel UAB is not doing enough to accommodate the growing number of students.

“Every semester we get an email telling us not to worry, and that there are enough spots at the remote lots, which is simply not true,” said Scarlet Ridley, a sopho- rine in psychology. She con- tinued to say that she feels that UAB doesn’t care about the practical parts of being a stu- dent. “I’m paying $1,000+ for a class, and $100+ for a parking spot, I better not have to park in a parking lot.”

While new lots have opened to students, few are students are aware of the new resources.

Ayanet Rountree, graduate student and intern of Institute of Human Rights, said that she did not receive a single email or announcement informing her of her new options.

“Not a single student I know uses the Blazer Express or has any knowledge of the new spaces opening up for parking,” Rountree said, a senior psychology, said.

As for now, Davis encour- aged students to learn to use their days more adequately and not to expect to find parking before class.

“Don’t think we are ignoring the problem and don’t think we are blind to the needs,” said Baxter. “We are utilizing everything in our power to make the parking and transit experience as best as we can make it.”

Sarah Faulkner can be reached at sarahfa@uab.edu and on Twitter at @SFAulkn2.

Photo by Ian Keel/Photo Editor

MORE PARKING, SHORTER COMMUTES

Combined changes to remote parking assignments and commuter parking rates (effective Jan. 9, 2018)

In addition to the attached field, the 46,000 sq. ft. building will be equipped with a locker room, training room, meeting rooms and offices. The program’s operations are currently housed in a building on University Boulevard and 13 Street South, which will be demolished at the end of the fall semester.

The new football facility is a total game changer, UAB has never had facilities like this, but now UAB is going to be one of the top three most popular football programs.

“The new football facility is a total game changer,” Clayton said. “In a perfect world, I’ll never be in a parking lot again.”

Parking

Purple Routes, which alternate from the lots every 15 minutes during the week and every 20 minutes during the weekend, has relieved parking and Transportation Services that has planned to execute a new parking system where the price of a parking permit will vary throughout “zone parking.”

Depending on how close or far from the deck which dock or lot to park in, will determined which price the student will pay for a permit for the semester.

“In a perfect world, I’ll have this new system along with the other plans running by Fall 2017,” Clayton said. “But, according to Baxter, however, adequate amount of spots exist to accommodate all student parking needs.

Clayton confirmed, a sopho-
rine in biology, and said students who live in the dorms face issues with parking.

“If I don’t come back to campus by 6 p.m. on Sunday that I know uses the Blazer Express or any other times of the day, I’m not going to park in the student’s parking lot because I know there is not enough parking spots,” Clayton said.

“A lot of the time, students think that if they go to the top three most popular places, and they are full, they come to the conclusion that that there is not enough parking on campus,” said Davis. “But my perimeter lots are still empty.”

Davis said that students may not feel the most convor- mation parking, and parking has always been available as long as they are willing to walk or use the transit system.

Some students still feel UAB is not doing enough to accommodate the growing number of students.

“Every semester we get an email telling us not to worry, and that there are enough spots at the remote lots, which is simply not true,” said Scarlet Ridley, a sopho- rine in psychology. She con- tinued to say that she feels that UAB doesn’t care about the practical parts of being a stu- dent. “I’m paying $1,000+ for a class, and $100+ for a parking spot, I better not have to park in a parking lot.”

While new lots have opened to students, few are students are aware of the new resources.

Ayanet Rountree, graduate student and intern of Institute of Human Rights, said that she did not receive a single email or announcement informing her of her new options.

“Not a single student I know uses the Blazer Express or has any knowledge of the new spaces opening up for parking,” Rountree said, a senior psychology, said.

As for now, Davis encour- aged students to learn to use their days more adequately and not to expect to find parking before class.

“Don’t think we are ignoring the problem and don’t think we are blind to the needs,” said Baxter. “We are utilizing everything in our power to make the parking and transit experience as best as we can make it.”

Sarah Faulkner can be reached at sarahfa@uab.edu and on Twitter at @SFAulkn2.

Photo by Ian Keel/Photo Editor

MORE PARKING, SHORTER COMMUTES

Combined changes to remote parking assignments and commuter parking rates (effective Jan. 9, 2018)