The intent of this program is to attract both international and U.S.-based early-stage investigators from outside the field of HIV research to help address key scientific questions in HIV research, including emerging issues of long-term survival with HIV infection, prevention of HIV transmission, and research toward a cure.

Awards will be funded for 1-2 years up to $150,000 (direct costs) plus applicable indirect costs.

Eligibility:
- Must have completed first terminal research degree or medical residency within last 10 years
- Must be faculty or equivalent (Post-docs are eligible under exception-see RFP)
- No previous grants/contracts in HIV/AIDS research

Concept submission extended to December 11, 2015
