Symposium on Disability Rights

Thursday and Friday, February 21-22, 2019
Hilton Birmingham at UAB
Birmingham, Alabama

THEME: DISABILITY RIGHTS ARE HUMAN RIGHTS

The quest for improving the rights of people with disabilities locally, nationally, and internationally is urgent and significant. Addressing the needs of the disability community through the removal of social, economic, and environmental barriers that limit accessibility to basic services and prevent persons with disabilities from participating fully in their communities, getting a quality education, achieving employment, and having their voices heard is at the center of a human rights approach to disability.

At this year’s conference, we explore the development and implementation of the rights of people with disabilities in a human rights context. The purpose of this symposium is to serve as a platform for discussion, scholarly exploration, and interaction between various groups interested or involved in promoting the human rights of people with disabilities and the disability rights movement from the local to international level.

This program is co-organized by the UAB Institute for Human Rights, Lakeshore Foundation, and the UAB Center for Disability Health and Rehabilitation Science, with special support of the UAB College of Arts and Sciences and the UAB School of Health Professions.

Judy Heumann

Judith E. “Judy” Heumann is an American disability rights activist. An internationally recognized leader in the disability community, Heumann is a lifelong civil rights advocate for people with disabilities. Her work with governments and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) has produced significant contributions since the 1970s to the development of human rights legislation and policies benefiting children and adults with disabilities. Through her work at the World Bank and the U.S. State Department, Heumann led the mainstreaming of disability rights into international development. Her contributions extended the international reach of the independent living movement.

John Kemp

John D. Kemp is an American disability rights leader who co-founded the American Association of People with Disabilities and is currently the President and CEO of the Viscardi Center and the Henry Viscardi School. Owing to a congenital anomaly, he was born without arms and legs and uses four prostheses to inspire people and empower people with disabilities. He is a renowned leader of the disability rights movement and has occupied top posts in the leading disability and nonprofit organizations.
Victor Pineda

Dr. Victor Pineda is an urban planner, social entrepreneur, filmmaker, and globally recognized human rights advocate. He is also an international speaker, consultant, and adjunct professor on policy, planning, and development. Dr. Pineda’s work focuses on urban resilience, inclusion, and sustainability. He founded the Pineda Foundation / World Enabled, a global nonprofit that promotes the rights of people with disabilities. He was recently appointed by President Obama to serve on the U.S. Access Board. Dr. Pineda holds a PhD in Urban Planning from UCLA.

Keller Thompson

Keller Johnson Thompson was named after her great-great aunt, Helen Keller. In 1994, she joined the Helen Keller Eye Research Foundation, a foundation her grandmother helped to establish, as their Director of Education. She has developed an educational program about the life and legacy of Helen Keller that she shares with schools across the U.S.

HOSTS

LAKESHORE FOUNDATION

Lakeshore Foundation is a nonprofit organization located in Birmingham, Alabama that provides opportunity for people with a physical disability or chronic health condition to be active and independent through physical activity, research and advocacy and policy. Aquatics, fitness, recreation, and athletic programs get everyone moving. The UAB/Lakeshore Research Collaborative develops and evaluates new programs and technology in exercise, sport science, health promotion and rehabilitation engineering; in addition, the National Center on Health, Physical Activity and Disability, which is housed at Lakeshore, works to improve the health and wellness of people with disabilities by supporting accessible and inclusive public health promotion programs. The advocacy and policy team invites people with and without disabilities to be engaged, informed and empowered to create partnerships that promote inclusion, access and equal representation in policy initiatives.

UAB CENTER FOR DISABILITY HEALTH AND REHABILITATION SCIENCE (DHARS)

The vision of this center is to create a world where people with disability will be afforded all of the same opportunities for a high quality of life and purposeful living as all other individuals. The UAB Center for Disability Health and Rehabilitation Science is housed in the School of Health Professions. Its mission and goals address the health, wellness and rehabilitation needs of more than 50 million Americans with disabilities who have substantially higher rates of health disparities, secondary health conditions and health care utilization compared to the general population. DHARS uses an inclusion science framework to connect researchers in disability, health, and rehabilitation with other UAB researchers who are working in health, engineering, and medicine with populations that do not include people with disabilities. The center consists of faculty and students from a variety of UAB Schools including the School of Health Profession, the School of Public Health, the School of Medicine, the School of Education, the School of Nursing, the School of Optometry, the School of Engineering, and the College of Arts and Sciences.
