Presented and Produced by
THE JOHN F. KENNEDY CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS in cooperation with
THE UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE THEATRE ASSOCIATION
Supported in part by a grant from
THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Sponsored by THE AMOCO COMPANIES

You are about to become involved in more than a play produced by your local college.

This production is entered in the American College Theatre Festival, and the actors, actresses, and crew members hope to be one of the productions chosen to perform in a national Festival in the spring of 1985 in the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

From local campus to the regional level, more than 470 productions and 10,000 students will compete for awards, scholarships, and special grants for actors, playwrights, designers and critics.

The American College Theatre Festival is possible because of pluralistic support of the arts in America. The ACTF is presented and produced by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in cooperation with the University and College Theatre Association, a division of the American Theatre Association. The Kennedy Center and the U.S. Department of Education contribute public sector financial and administrative support. The Amoco Companies, for the 15th year, are the corporate sponsors of ACTF, and their contribution is to help college theatre grow and receive more recognition for the work being done on the campus.

Production note on FAMILY

UAB Theatre and Dance is honored to bring you tonight's world premiere production of FAMILY, the 1984 winning entry in the Ruby Lloyd Apsey Playwriting Competition. This contest, along with several others conducted across the country, is what is good about American educational theatre.

Plays have never magically appeared on Broadway—the process has always been long and painful. The exciting trend in today's theatre, however, is that of regional development, "bottom-based" and not "top-based" production. Rather than merely opening "out of town" for a few preview performances, plays are now being first produced for extended runs at regional theatres and on college and university campuses before they may eventually reach New York City. The Ruby Lloyd Apsey Playwriting Competition offers UAB the opportunity to be a part of this process.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Ruby Lloyd Apsey, young and talented playwrights from all over the United States are given the occasion to come to Birmingham and work closely with a director, designers, and a cast and crew on fully realized productions of their plays. Without the pressures of commercial theatre production, playwrights are able to explore the "how" of their art. UAB Theatre and Dance is proud to aid in the encouragement and growth and development of young playwrights and new plays.
