Who's who

Barbara Bates Smith (Ivy Rowe/Author) Following her New York debut with IVY ROWE, Smith's touring engagements have included Abingdon, Virginia; East Hampton, New York; Cape May, New Jersey; New Harmony, Indiana; Highlands, North Carolina, and several Southeastern colleges and writers' conferences. At Florida's Asolo Theatre she was in the world premiere of Horton Foote's TALKING PICTURES. Other leading regional roles were WOMAN IN MIND, THE ROAD TO MECCA, WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?, SISTER MARY IGNATIUS..., and MARGARET SANGER/UNFINISHED BUSINESS. In Tampa in '88 Smith conceived and co-directed JAZZ, JAM, NO JIVE - an original play by and about Tampa's African-American teenagers, with music by Nat Adderley. While in residence in Lakeland, Florida, Smith is currently developing a stage work from Kaye Gibbons' novel, ELLEN FOSTER. She will direct TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD at Theatre Winter Haven in the spring. Ms. Smith is the former Barbara Bates Brotherton of Jasper, Alabama. She and her husband Russell Smith, are both graduates of the University of Alabama, and they lived in Birmingham while Russell attended medical school. They have three children.
