This is our fourteenth Festival! So we feel we have reason to be proud ... but to be honest, also a little ashamed. Because we realized that over the years, the vast majority of our plays have been basically about men. This year's Festival begins our commitment to restoring the balance. Six plays emphasizing women are not nearly enough -- but they are a start. There'll be more.

Thanks to all the midwives who participated in the birth of our fourteenth annual Festival of Ten-Minute Plays! We're especially grateful to Kevin Worden for going the extra mile in support of a vital prop, and to Ed and Kelly for keeping the show together this year despite some extraordinary challenges.
