CCTS Team Leading Clinical & Translational Discovery to Health Impact

The CCTS and its Partner Network, led by its Office of Directors, are working together in anticipation of the Center’s competitive renewal in January (l-r, Michael Mugavero, Richard Hines, Robert Kimberly (PD/PI), James Cimino, Jennifer Croker, Orlando Gutierrez (PD/PI); not pictured, Mona Fouad, Mark Gillespie, Lucio Miele and Kenneth Saag, Katherine Bradford).

Community and Scientific Action Board (CSAB) Welcomes New Members

Each of the five new CSAB members bring a wealth of knowledge and experience that will help guide community-engaged research.

Each member will be instrumental in achieving greater community involvement in research projects which both reflect the needs of our communities and add to the shared body of knowledge. Through effective connection and engagement with our communities, research endeavors can move faster with results communicated more broadly for greater societal impact. - CSAB Chair Bryn Manzella, MPH

Need Help Preparing Your SBIR/STTR Application?

There are two ways to find the support you need! The NIH Applicant Assistance Program is a free, 10-week mentoring program for new SBIR/STTR applicants. Learn more about how a mentor could help refine and prepare your application.

The CCTS Innovation Panels (iPanel) program is a one-hour discussion on your scientific discovery, technology development, or novel process. A group of individuals with expertise in science, tech transfer and business development are brought together to help chart a path forward. Learn more and request a panel here.
