Program Overview: The UAB CORD Summer Science Institute III research internship is open to high school students completing their junior and senior years. Participation in the program includes an intensive 40 hours per week, eight-week internship. Prior to joining an assigned mentor’s lab, the interns will attend an intensive 3-day orientation in which they will be trained in biomedical laboratory techniques. Each intern will be assigned to a UAB faculty research mentor under whom they develop an independent research project related to the mentor’s research focus. At the end of the program, interns present their research at poster symposiums on UAB campus competing for monetary prizes and a scholarship to UAB.
