Juvenile Scleroderma

These websites have reliable, up-to-date information. If you have questions about your child’s condition or care, please speak with a member of the health care team.

Juvenile Scleroderma Network (United States)
http://www.jsdn.org

- Information and support for families and children with scleroderma.
- Describes different types of juvenile scleroderma. Links to articles, message boards, and other organizations dealing with rheumatic diseases.
- Includes patients’ stories and an up-to-date list of research studies (clinical trials) related to scleroderma.

National Institute of Health (United States)
www.niams.nih.gov/Health_Info/Scleroderma/

- Complete information on the diagnosis, prognosis, and treatment of scleroderma.
- Includes many links to topics such as: understanding ANA tests, managing complications of scleroderma, understanding the difference between an adult and pediatric rheumatologist.
- View or print Fact Sheets in English or Spanish.

About Kids Health (Canada)
www.aboutkidshealth.ca/HealthAZ/Morphea.aspx?articleID=9591&categoryID=A Z1n

- This is the website of the Hospital for Sick Children (Toronto, ON).
- Describes morphea (a skin condition found in most forms of localized scleroderma) and its treatment.
- Does not have many links to scleroderma or other rheumatic diseases.