

Speaker: Timothy J. Ness, M.D., Ph.D.
Simon Gelman Professor
Director, Clinical Academic Achievement Program
Professor of Anesthesiology
University of Alabama at Birmingham

Date: September 29, 2015

Title: "Models of bladder hypersensitivity"

Synopsis: This seminar summarizes work in progress in the Ness lab related to models of bladder hypersensitivity that can be induced by stress, inflammation, and developmental insult. These models with reflux, electrophysiological and human reports and their pharmacological manipulation will be described.