PUBLICATION

THIS MONTH IN ANESTHESIOLOGY HISTORY

June 7, 1811: James Young Simpson was born in Bathgate, near Edinburgh, Scotland. In late 1847 Simpson and several associates discovered the anesthetic properties of chloroform after dinner one evening in Simpson’s house on Queen Street. On November 8 he introduced chloroform into clinical practice; the patient was Jane Carstairs, wife of a physician and pregnant with her second child. She supposedly named her daughter “Anaesthesia” to express gratefulness to Simpson after a birth she could not remember. The more prosaic story of Jane and her daughter Wilhelmina is told in Defalque RJ, Wright AJ. The myth of baby “anaesthesia”. Anesthesiology. 2009 Sep; 111(3):682. At the time of his death in May, 1870, Simpson was one of the best known physicians in Europe; 80,000 people [some sources claim 100,000] were said to have lined the streets of Edinburgh for his funeral procession.
