US News and World Report

At the upcoming faculty meeting on September 29 at noon, I will share goals for the DOP. This faculty meeting will be at a special day and time (12 noon) to allow Dean Vickers to attend and speak with us. I invite you to attend. One of the goals for FY 15 is to improve our (DOP-COA) rankings in the US News and World Report survey. I have started to meet with division leaders in each of the US News and World report specialty programs in order to identify gaps that we want to address. For example, lowering infections is clearly a gap we want to address. However, in most cases, increasing volume to score the maximum points is not a goal we will embrace. My first observation is that we are doing very well and that we are going to do even better this year. Being great means being willing to identify quality gaps and being the best at getting better. As a Department of Pediatrics, we cannot do this alone. I am very pleased with the partnership and analytics provided by Christi Napper, Director of Institutional Planning at COA. No one does it better. Christi is going to present an overview of what we are doing to prepare for the next survey at the faculty meeting. She will outline short term and long term plans at COA to address cross cutting (hospital wide) gaps. As we work on division and disease specific improvement opportunities, I am confident that we will be increasingly recognized as a high quality, high reliability organization. This will mean improved health for the children of Alabama and as a consequence, even better US News and World Report rankings. This is absolutely achievable and we will do it.
